BIOSHOCK 2 DEVELOPMENT

Comic should be drawn in a cartoony style, similar to what you see on a newspaper strip. The only exception here being the business man, who should be drawn in a realistic way.

PANEL 1

Drawing of a building with the TAKE TWO logo.

PANEL 2

Business man with gelled hair is sitting on a chair with Ken Levine next to him. The business man speaks:

B.M
Mr. Levine, as you have observed for the past month, Bioshock has been a tremendous success. I do believe a franchise must be established, begin development in a sequel at once.

* Suggestion: Draw the business man similar to The Illusive Man from Mass Effect 2.

PANEL 3

Levine speaking.

LEVINE
I do believe a complete overhaul will be required. How can we recreate Bioshock's atmosphere and gameplay without making it feel the same? If there is to be a sequel, I believe a franchise such as this requires each game to feel completely new and-- (abrupt stop)

PANEL 4 (Small)

Shot of a window from the outside of the Take Two building.

PANEL 5 (Small)

Ken Levine crashing out the window screaming.

PANEL 1
Business man is talking to random nerd, make sure that there's a few ugly fucks (fat nerdy girls, manchildren, etc) standing in the background, sitting around a table, for example.

B.M
Hello, my good friend, would you like to develop Bioshock 2? All you have to do is make the most generic sequel ever made. All the money we could've used to make it better will be spent on alcohol for the launch party.

NERD

Fuck yes.

PANEL 2 (Small)

Text with the caption TWO YEARS LATER.

PANEL 3

Mock-up of GameSpot giving the game a 10 out of 10 with the following text on the left side:

GAMESPOT TEXT
Bioshock 2 is a game that transcends simple human feelings, this voyage into the human spirit shows how video games are indeed art and not simple entertainment.

Text should be a bit cut-off in the panel to make it seem a bit more legitimate.

PANEL 4 (Small)

Drawing of a chart which says TAKE TWO – BIOSHOCK 2 SALES with the line going off the chart.

PANEL 5

Nerds in launch party drinking absinthe/whatever, add some people puking in the background and maybe two fat fucks on the floor fucking. Little box at the bottom right saying: THE END
